THE ENGLISH DEPARTMENT

The goal of English classes is to emphasize the basic language skills: reading, writing, speaking, and listening. Various materials and techniques are used to reach this goal.

Students use textbooks, reading cards, magazines, newspapers, library books, and paperback books. They read plays aloud, make oral reports, and participate in discussion. Classes see films and film strips, hear records and tapes, and occasionally have a guest speaker. They make notes and summaries, write reports and opinions, and of course, take tests.

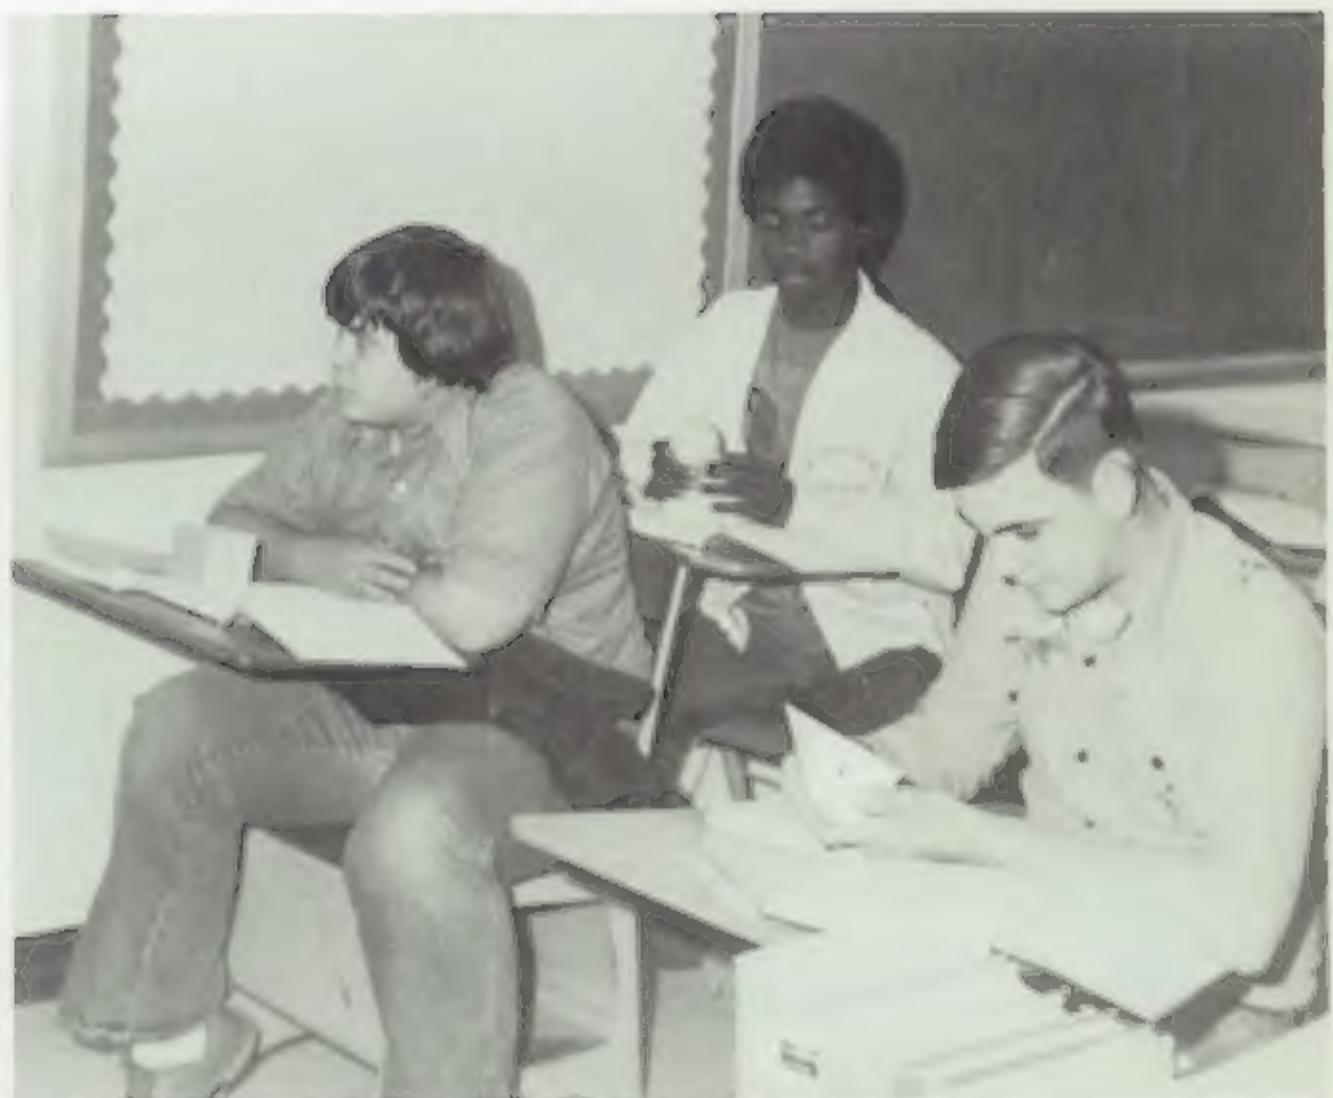

This multi-facet program is conducted by one person, Mrs. Ethel Weeks, for grades nine through twelve. Mrs. Weeks has several degrees from Louisiana Tech; however, she learns more from students each year than from any other source.

Together students and the teacher work toward improvement of basic language skills. Most of the time they make noticeable progress.

RIGHT: Tommy Womack is trying to understand the problem as Mrs. Zeno explains it slowly.

TOP: Geometry students use wooden objects to help them understand their equations.

THE MATHEMATICS DEPARTMENT

The curriculum of the mathematics department of Weston High School purports to give fundamental ideas and applications of mathematics in such a way that they can be clearly understood and effectively used by persons of differing age levels, mathematical backgrounds, and abilities. In order to accomplish this goal, course offerings are provided for the more able as well as for the less able students.

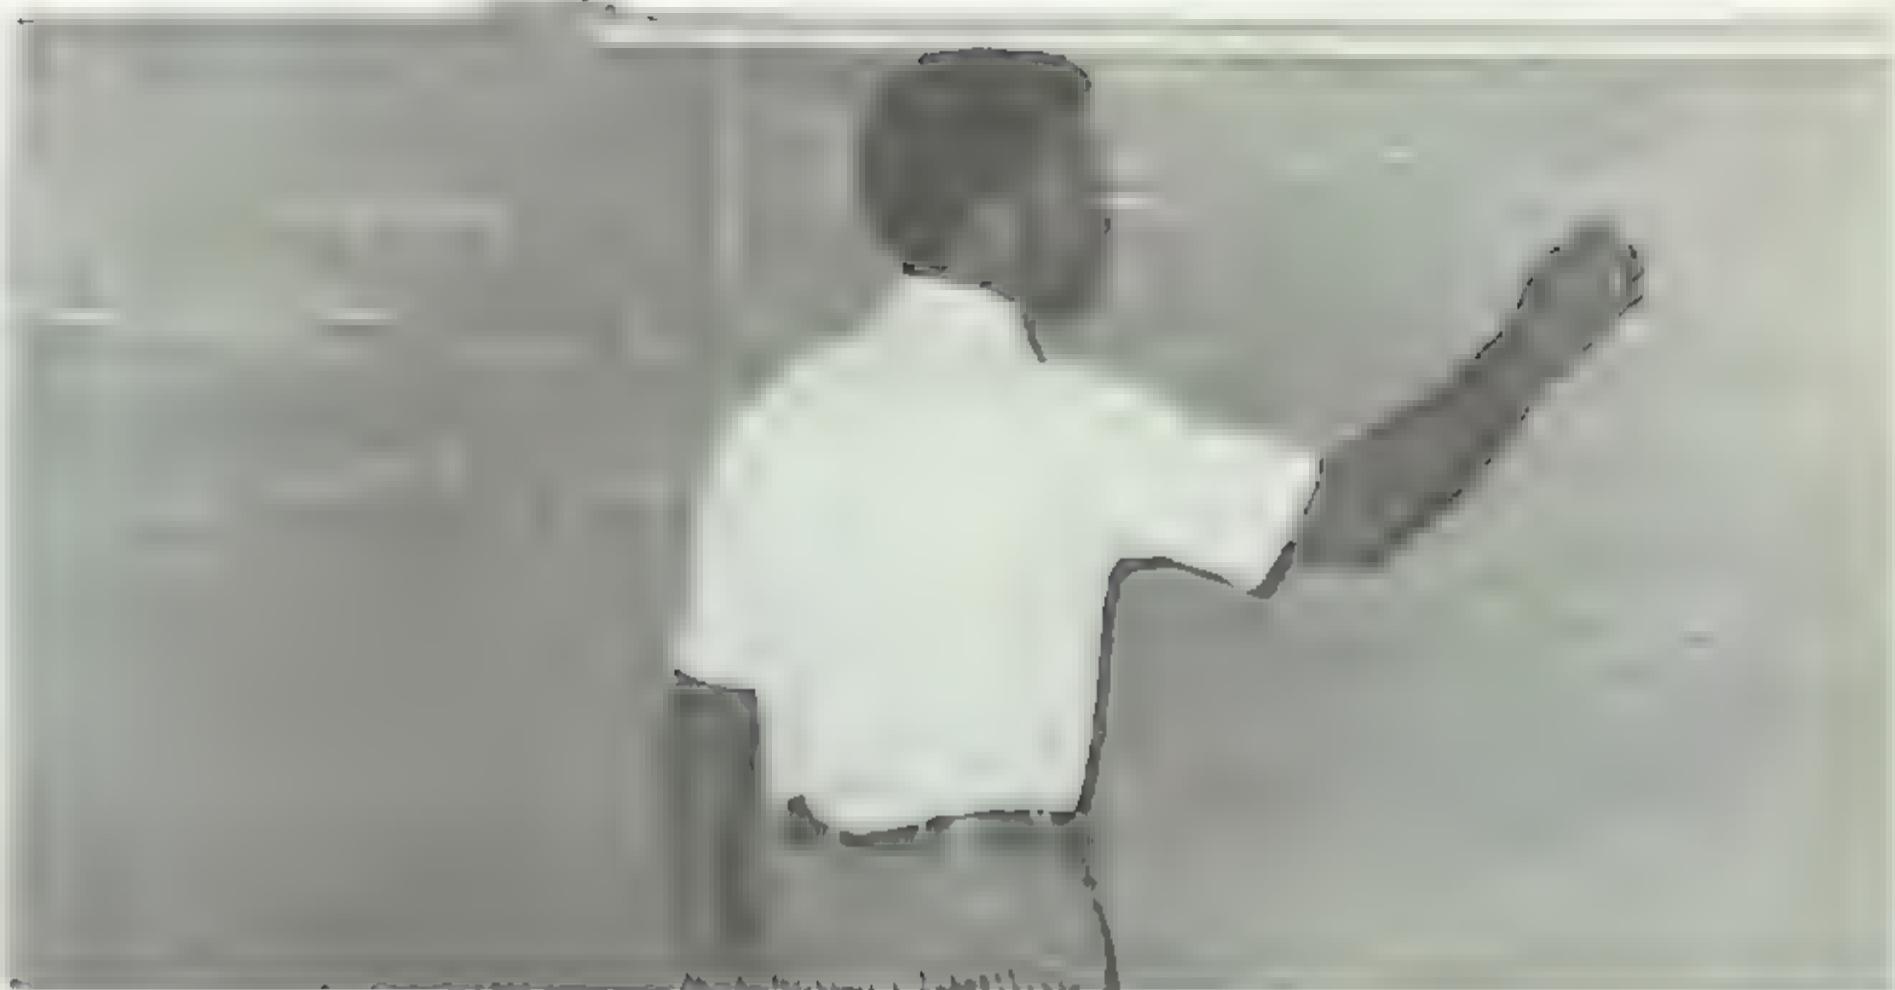

For the more able, college bound students, the math department offers Algebra I, Algebra II, geometry, and advanced mathematics. For the less able students general mathematics and senior arithmetic classes are offered to prepare the students to meet everyday mathematical situations.

The mathematics department is under the leadership of Mrs. Dee Zeno and Mrs. Mary Rasberry. It is desired that all students will develop: a greater degree of proficiency in the four fundamental operations with numbers; an understanding of the nature of mathematical reasoning; an understanding of the value of mathematics in solving problems encountered in daily living; and certain desirable habits, such as thinking, working independently, drawing conclusions, preparing and expressing results in a neat and orderly manner.

THE SOCIAL STUDIES DEPARTMENT

Social, political, and technological forces in our nation and in the world offer ample evidence of the need for a high degree of responsibility in our educational process. Social studies touch each person in our nation today. The forces shaping our world are complex - so complex as to tax our most careful judgment about what is the most important content and knowledge for the child in his school years. It is the purpose of the Weston social studies department, under the direction of Mr. Otha Anders and Mr. Jack Taylor, through instructions in American History, Democracy versus Communism, world geography, civics, American Government, and consumer economics to provide that a child's school experiences may lead to the development of a healthy self-concept and a well informed, mature, and contributing approach to life in our modern society.

At Weston a multi-text, conceptual based inquiry approach emphasizing the development of self, values, skills, attitudes, appreciations and understandings is used. It is felt a social studies program based on concept development is more relevant to contemporary personal-social conditions, more need-satisfying and challenging for children and youth at various stages of development and that it does foster those needed skills, attitudes, appreciations, and values along with understandings, which have usually received disproportionate attention.

Our classrooms are laboratories of patriotic living in which the students and the teachers practice principles and ideals of American Democracy.

OPPOSITE, TOP: Mr. Anders explains Civics by writing many notes on the board.

THE SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

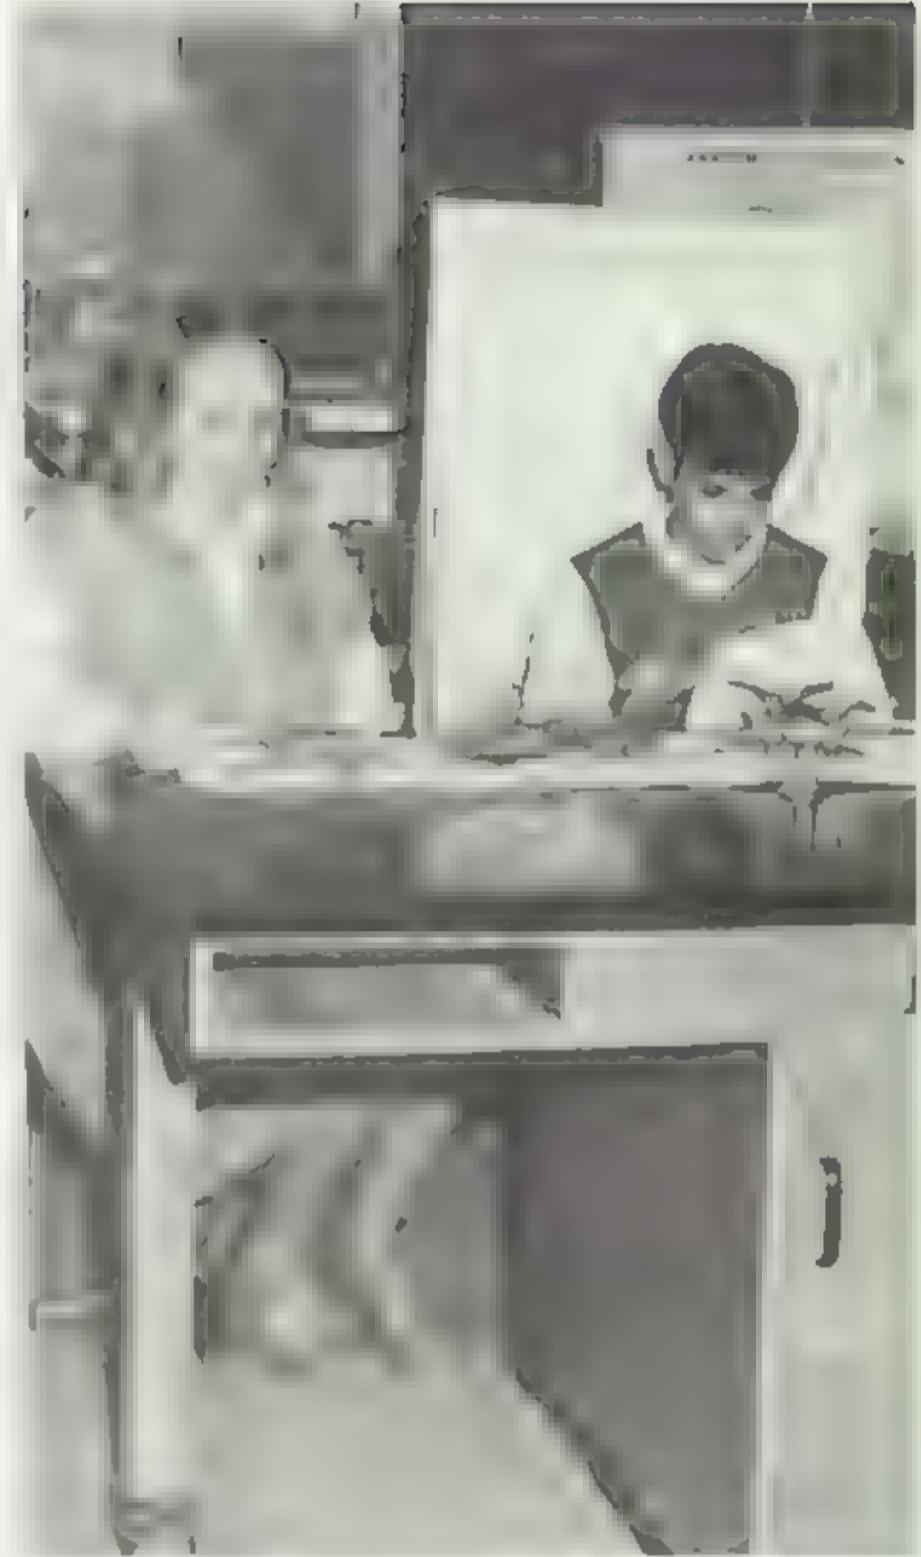

The science department seeks to enable students to become proficient in basic and advanced areas of study. Through the use of films, programs, and lab work, as well as indirect methods such as textbook study, the department presents fundamental ideas and challenges the curiosity, ingenuity, and imagination of the science student. The science department is under the supervision of Mr. Mike Staples.

In general science freshmen become acquainted with the many aspects of physical science. Through films and discussion, students are made aware of the earth, space, and the universe.

Sophomores enrolled in biology come to be familiar with basic concepts of life. Students learn through laboratory work, dissection, and scientific collection procedures.

Problems, experiments, and discussions play major roles in familiarizing students with chemistry. Here students become acquainted with analytical science and experimentation.

Photography students grow to be skilled in many aspects of black and white photography. Picture taking, developing, and printing seem as ever day tasks for these students.

BOTTOM, RIGHT: With the use of the periodic table Tim Norman and Tammy Ramsey are going to solve the problem which Lauri Pardue is writing on the board.

THE BUSINESS EDUCATION DEPARTMENT

The business education department is concerned with developing office skills for those who will seek employment in business occupational fields. Since many students end their formal education with high school, there is an urgent need for vocational business instruction on the high school level.

Opportunities are provided for business majors to develop desirable skills, attitudes, appreciation, and competency. Advanced students are given "service jobs" for actual work experiences. Every classroom situation lends itself to individualization of instruction to some degree. The faster and slower learners, as well as the students with special interests, are kept at a maximum of productivity by appealing to their individual interests and needs. Multi-media materials are used by the instructor, Mrs. Wanda Norman, to stimulate and teach students. By rotation, six units of credit are being offered - Typing I, Typing II, Shorthand I, Book-keeping I, general business and clerical practice.

BELOW, RIGHT: Pam Thompson checks to see if Donna Ford will need to make any alterations on her garment.

THE HOME ECONOMICS DEPARTMENT

One of the ultimate goals of the home economics department is to contribute to more effective home and family living in a democratic world. In present day society, students must be prepared for the dual roles of homemaker and wage earner.

Students are taught to generalize from their experiences and to develop understanding useful to them in a variety of new situations. It is the wish of the advisor, Mrs. Bettye T. Pate, that the program is designed for all students; the scope of its offerings is sufficient to provide for a wide range of individual differences.

To make the learning situation more meaningful and delightful, students have the opportunity to learn knitting, crocheting, embroidery, decoupage, ceramics, and many other fun projects.

TOP: Robbyn Thomas, Saundra Wyatt, Lisa Wilson, and Janet West are working on one of their many fun projects - macrame.

LEFT: Some girls, such as Becka Trosclair, are not interested in knitting; she chose to refurbish a fern stand instead.

RIGHT: Woodworking comes naturally to Glenn Colley, Jackie Gandy, and Derrick McCardia.

THE VOCATIONAL-AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT

The aims and objectives of the vocational-agriculture department are expressed specifically in a state program of work. It is thought that the more hands-on work experience a student has as related to life after graduation, the better he can adapt himself in the field of work; therefore, the agriculture department in addition to helping a student better enter an agriculturally oriented society, stresses experiences in welding, engines, electricity, wood-working, and plumbing. After a student determines his area of work in society as a junior, he primarily works in that interest center the remainder of his agricultural work. A student's agricultural work is done under the supervision of Mr. H. J. Hale.

TOP: Electrical problems are discussed by Mr. Hale.

THE PHYSICAL EDUCATION DEPARTMENT

It is felt that the physical education program should be so planned and administered that every pupil is provided ample opportunity for the greatest possible physical, mental, emotional, and social development. Mr. Jack Taylor and Mrs. Ann McCready create an environment which is favorable to the acquisition of neuromuscular skills and organic vitality so that students will learn to use their powers intelligently and co-operatively and be able to make the best possible contribution to society.

The FFA is an agriculturally oriented society for students here at Weston High School who are enrolled in Vocational Agriculture courses. The officers for this year were (top - left to right) James Gandy, Reporter; Larry Reed, Secretary; Mark Hale, President; Joe Hogan, Sentinel; Richard Harmon, Parliamentarian; (bottom - left to right) Mr. H. J. Hale, Advisor; Jackie Gandy, Vice President; Mike Fowler, Treasurer; Leamon Stewart, Second Vice President (not shown); Todd Peevy, Chaplain (not shown).

The FFA is a very active organization for students enrolled in agriculture classes. Besides the judging, a few of the many activities held are the FFA-FHA fall cookout and the annual FFA banquet.

FFA'ers were very proud of both their public speaker and Parliamentary Law team this year which placed second at Area II competition.

The FFA chapter would also like to give recognition to their FFA sweethearts which were Donna Thomas and Jamie Wyatt.

The FFA is very proud of the many award winners here at Weston.

FBLA

The Future Business Leaders of America is a national vocational youth organization opened to students enrolled in business subjects. The Weston Chapter was re-activated this year and participated in the District II Conference at La. Tech in February. Eleven students competed in various contests and nine were eligible to go on to state competition. Although the competition was tough at the State Conference in Baton Rouge, the Parliamentary Law team took sixth place. Officers are President, Wanda Baxter; Vice-President, Connie Walsworth; Secretary, Donna Ford; Treasurer, Debbie Hogan; Reporter, Michael Kramer; Parliamentarian, Michael Fowler and Activity Leader, Kitten Massey.

1977 Class C State Baseball Champions

The 1977 season proved to be the most successful ever experienced by a Wolf baseball team. The Wolves redeemed an opening game loss with 17 consecutive wins and the state championship. Seniors Mark Hale and Peanut Stewart led a devastating offensive attack which averaged 12 runs a game and produced a composite team batting average of .365. The lineup was loaded with power as evidenced by a production of 17 home runs in 18 games.

The Wolves suffered trying times on their road to the state championship. After breezing through the district championship with an unblemished record, Weston defeated Monticello 10-3 in bi-district action. In the quarter-finals and semi-finals, Shongaloo was defeated 9-6 and Promised Land, 12-10. Weston was propelled by Fidell Bolds and Purvis Wiley's homeruns to defeat Simsboro 8-7 in the State finals. It was the perfect ending to an almost perfect season.

Principal's Message

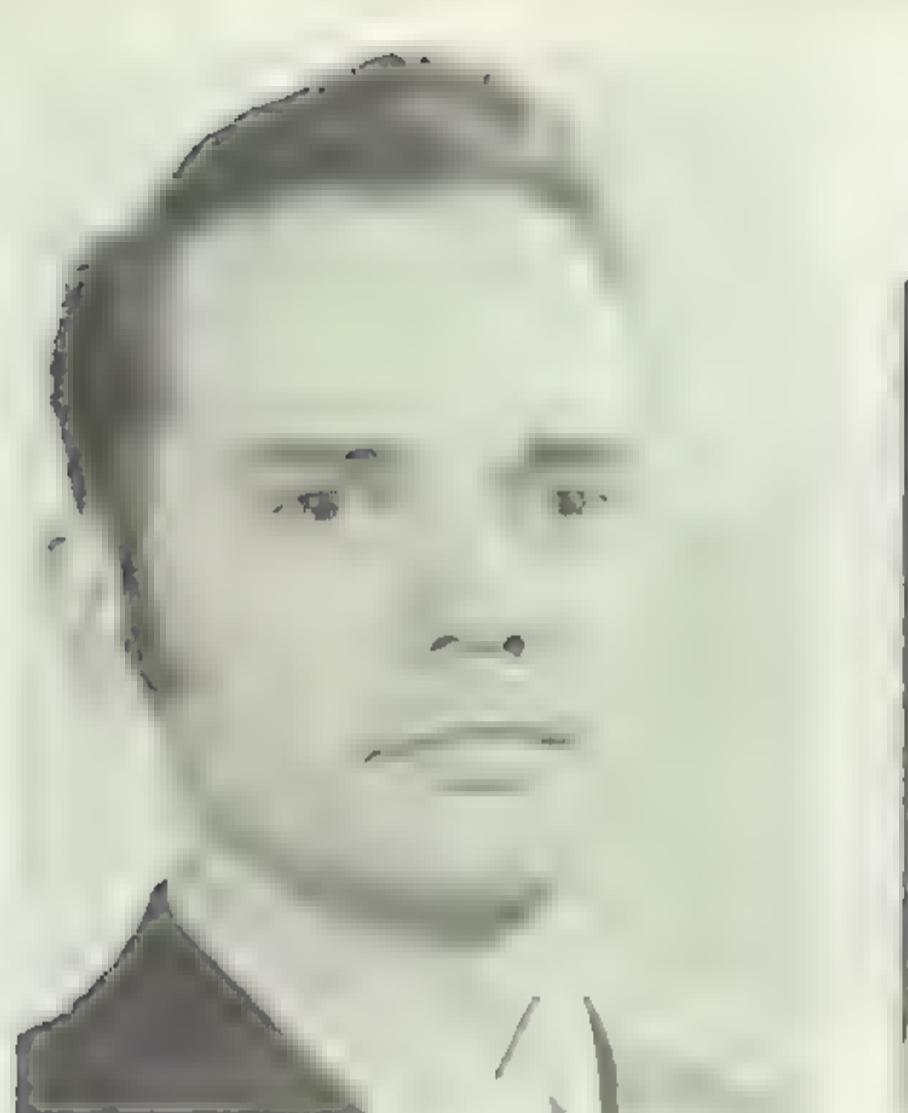

This completes my tenth year as principal of the Weston High School which have been good ones. I am indebted to many who have helped make these very fruitful years. A good example can be seen in the picture with Mr. John Thrasher presenting a bell to the school. It is similar to the one that once was used to give directions to the students at school.

I am grateful for the hard work of the faculty, students, parents, and friends, which have contributed to the growth of our school and community. There have been new courses added to the curriculum and many other innovations enriching the total school program. Let's continue in your efforts and look forward with greater aspiration.

Mrs. Myers is retiring after 21 years of dedicated service, 20 of them in the third grade here at Weston. Saddened by the loss of a "real jewel" from our faculty, yet, proud for her and wish the very best for her in the future.

TOP: A representative from Louisiana College told interested seniors about his school.

RIGHT: During an energy program, students watched a bicycle-powered television and heard fiddle music.

TOP: Everyone enjoyed Bro. Flurry's visit to our school on April 29.

LEFT: Panel discussion was part of Bro. Flurry's program. The questions that were asked pertained to problems of today's youth. The panel members were Phillip Lawrence, Mark Hale, Jackie Gandy, Purvis Wiley, Robert Bedgood, Barbara Bryant, Sandra Kirkland, Rebecca Potts, Michelle Brown, and Becka Trosclair (the last five members are shown in the picture below).

BOTTOM: Bro. Flurry also spoke to us on drugs, alcohol, and their effects on people.

New Programs, New Faces, and New Buildings

Weston participated in the National Reading Improvement Project this year. NRIP is a federally funded project concerned with improving student's reading skills. Seven North Louisiana school systems are involved in NRIP. The parishes included are Lincoln, Jackson, Winn, Ouachita, and Richland. Dr. Vera Bonnett met with the elementary teachers each Monday from 2-4 P.M. for in-service training.

Two new itinerate teachers were added to our faculty this year. On alternating days Mrs. Bonnie Stephenson, speech therapist, and Mrs. Doris Ford, resource teacher, came into our school.

Due to overcrowding in the Kindergarten building an additional room is being added. Parents and the FFA boys are doing the construction.

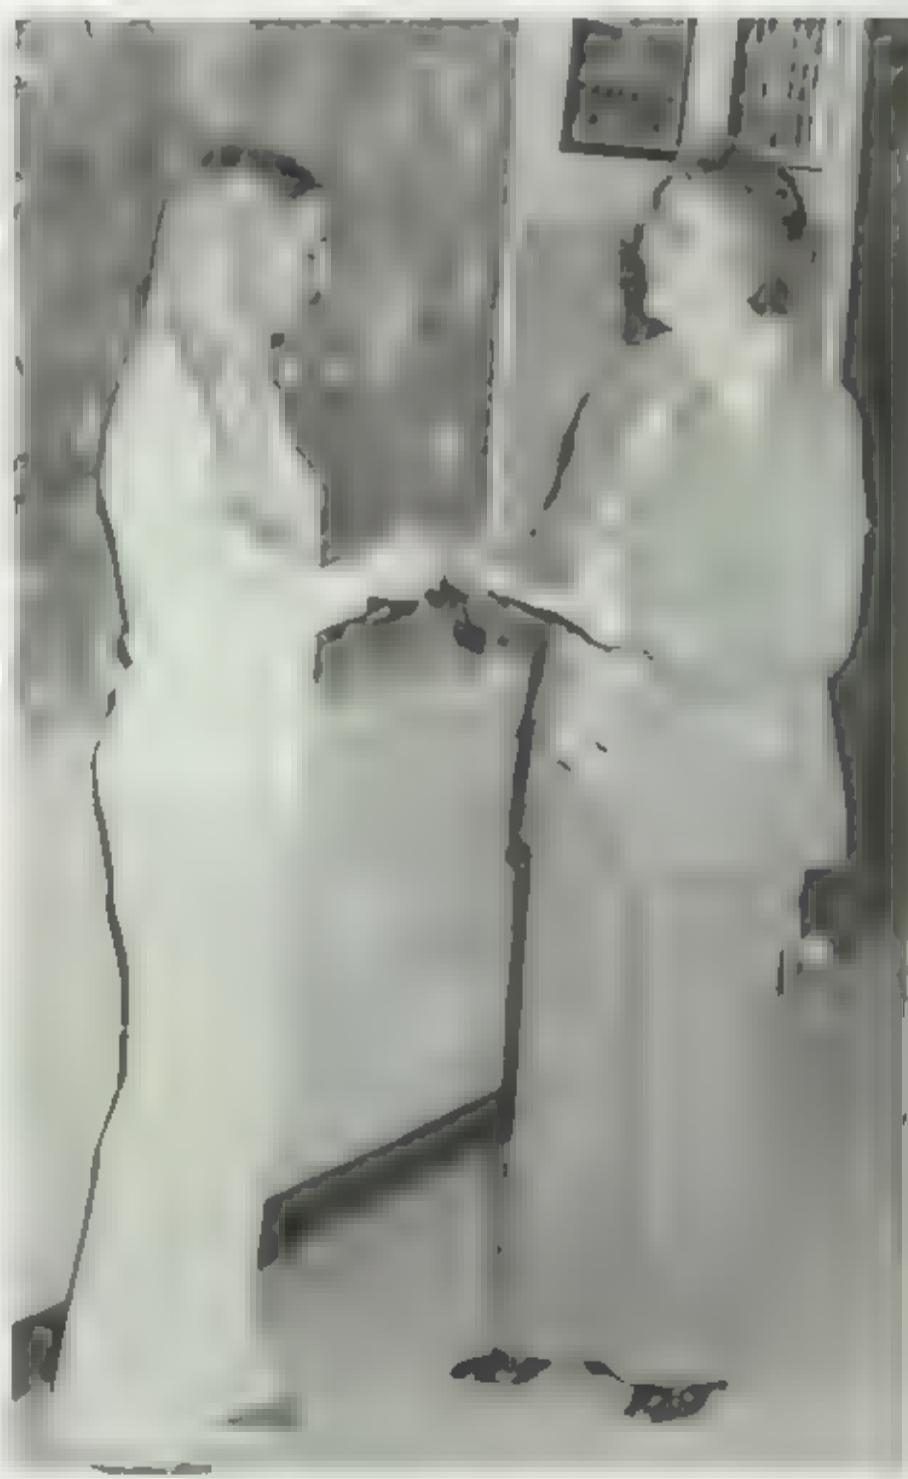

Awards

RIGHT: Belinda Kelly, Saundra Wyatt, and Joe Hogan were State Rally Contestants.

BELOW: Kitten Massey was the Girls' State Alternate. Jamie Wyatt was the Girls' State Delegate.

BOTTOM, LEFT: James Gandy was the Boys' State Alternate. Joe Hogan was the Boys' State Delegate.

BOTTOM, RIGHT: Wanda Baxter was the DAR Good Citizen.

Moments to Remember

LET'S HEAR IT FOR '77 . . .

the Presidential election,
the snow,
the overcrowded classes,
the State Baseball Champs,
the Seniors leaving us,
all the joys and sorrows
that have made '77 a year we'll never forget!

As I pause for a moment to reflect on this past year with all its joys and sorrows, this poem expresses my feelings.

Let me not cast a backward glance
On scenes now past and gone,
But look with eagerness and joy
Towards tomorrow's dawn.

What I might do on yesterday
Has now been left behind;
But, oh, the glorious challenges
Tomorrow has defined!

I ask you, Lord, be lenient
On failures of past years
And let them serve as guidelines
As the bright, new day appears.

Special thanks to very special people, Mrs. Norman, an understanding advisor; my parents; and all the others who helped make this publication possible.
